Round One

- Consist of eighteen questions. Each individual team member is asked three questions, for a total of nine questions per team.
- Questions presented in rotation to the teams and the contestants within the teams.
- Answers must be stated within 10 seconds of the question's reading. Answers will be true/false, multiple choice, fill in the blank or short answer.
- Teams can consult one another prior to the answer being given.
- Correct answers are worth 10 points, with no deduction for incorrect answers.
- If no answer is given or if the answer is incorrect, the moderator will read the correct answer.

Round Two – Worksheet Three Minute Round

- Each team will be given two copies (face down) of the same twenty question worksheet. Each team will answer the questions at the same time. Each answer is worth ten points.
- The captain will write the team name on the back of each sheet.
- When the timer says “begin” the teams will have three minutes to write down their answers to all twenty questions.
- The timer will announce when one minute remains and then when thirty seconds are left.
- When the timer calls time, the teams must stop writing immediately and the captain will turn in ONE copy of the worksheet which the moderator will score and then announce the total points of each team.
- The moderator will not read the answers aloud. In scoring, spelling does not count against a team, but the moderator must be sure that the spelling is close enough to the correct answer.
- Teams cannot ask for help outside the team itself.
- After the completion of the second round the point totals will be announced.
- The teams with the lowest scores will be eliminated.

Round Three – Rapid Fire Round

- Each pair of teams will have a coin toss. The team that wins the coin toss will get the first ten questions.
- Each question is worth 10 points if answered correctly.

- Consultation is permitted within the team and all answers must be given by the team captain or designate.
- The captain or designate may respond before completion of the question.
- Once the clock has started, the moderator will give a team an indefinite period of time to answer each question – that is until the sixty seconds has expired.
- If the team cannot answer the question they can say PASS and the moderator will read the next question. Passing the question will not count against the team.
- Once the team passed on a question, it can return to that question at any time by indicating to the moderator the number of the question and then giving the answer. They may also return to the question if time remains on the clock.
- The moderator will indicate if the answer is correct or incorrect at the end of each response.
- After time has expired the opposing team will be given their ten questions with a sixty second time limit.

- The score from this round will be added to the existing rounds totals.
- Each team will be playing against the sixty second clock not the opposing team.
- After the completion of the third round the top two, three, or four teams (actual number will be determined based on number of teams) will move on to the fourth and final round.

Round Four – Termination Round

- Each team member will be asked bonus questions starting with the captain and continued on rotation.
- Each bonus question will be worth ten points. For every question answered correctly another bonus question will be asked until all ten questions are answered, or an incorrect answer is given, or the question is not answered.
- If a team is given bonus question and there is an incorrect answer, or no answer is provided there will be a penalty of ten points deducted from the teams total score.
- After each team has been read all ten questions or teams have missed questions there will be a points tally provided.
- The team with the highest number of points will be declared the winner.
